Surprise Party

Mrs. Hager was happily surprised on Tuesday evening when a group of Senior W.A. members arrived at her home for a sing song and social evening. Her son, Wm. Blaine, who had arrived to see about transporting his mother to Devon was a great help with the devotion that ensued.

Mrs. E. C. Fenton on behalf of the Senior W.A. made a presentation to Mrs. Hager and spoke of her willing help in all W.A. projects.

A delicious lunch was served and Mr. J. Jackson who just "happened in" was the hit of the evening with his Irish gift of tea cup reading.

It is regrettable that word did not get around to all members who would like to have attended but each and everyone joins in wishing Mrs. Hager long life and happiness in her new home.

Wedding Bells

MacDONALD — FRICKELTON

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Frickelton, Wednesday evening, May 6 at 7:30 when Miss June Frickelton, their only daughter, was united in marriage to Mr. Kenneth J. MacDonald, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. K. MacDonald of Ryley, Alta.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. J. White, minister of First Presbyterian Church, Edmonton.

To the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Miss Marjory Coulman, the bride, on the arm of her father, entered a room tastefully decorated with bouquets of gladioli, roses and spring flowers. The bride looked charming in a floor length dress of periwinkle blue hylon net over taffeta, trimmed with nylon lace. Her chapel length veil was held in place with a pearl coronet and she carried a colonial bouquet of sweet heart roses and gladioli.

The bride and groom were attended by Miss Irene Larson and Mr. Malcolm Frickelton, the bridesmaid wearing a contrasting blue nylon sheer over taffeta, with matching chapel veil. She carried a colonial bouquet of tea roses and yellow gladioli. The bride's mother wore a dress of rosewood tissue faille, trimmed with lace and wore a corsage of yellow and white roses.

Mrs. MacDonald wore a blue printed crepe dress and wore a corsage of American Beauty roses.

After the ceremony, a buffet supper was served, a three tiered wedding cake centering the table. The toast to the bride was proposed by the Rev. E. J. White. The happy couple expect to leave shortly for the coast where they will reside.

Bridal Shower

A large number of Irma ladies gathered in the basement of the United Church on Tuesday evening, May 5 to honor Miss June Frickelton whose marriage to Mr. Kenneth MacDonald took place next day.

The basement had been decorated for the occasion and the famous kazoo band of the Ladies Aid was right on hand to play "Here Comes the Bride" when June appeared. The future Mrs. MacDonald remarked that it sounded just like wedding pipes.

A sing song was held with the kazoo band accompanying and with Mrs. D. H. Gunn as mistress of ceremonies. Mrs. Martin Enger then conducted two interesting contests and Mrs. B. Long with Mrs. Hubman demonstrated the thorough treatment a labor worker gives her patients. After a most exhaustive research Mrs. Long's verdict was that the "love bug" was the cause for her patient's strange behavior.

The guest of honor was then asked to close the shower umbrella and the many lovely gifts found there were opened and admired.

June thanked her many friends and expressed the hope that they would visit her in her new home at the coast.

The ladies then joined hands and sang "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow," and a delicious lunch was served by the hostesses Mrs. S. M. Brown, Mrs. R. C. McFarland, Mrs. E. T. Targett, Mrs. B. Long, Mrs. Symington, Mrs. Enger, Mrs. Hubner, Mrs. Gunn, Mrs. Hubman, Mrs. Milne and Mrs. Black.

Card of Thanks

To the members of the W.A. and the members of the W.I. and to the nurses and staff of the Wainwright Hospital and the Brothers of Wainwright Lodge L.O.O.F. and to all who called to see me and the cards and lovely parcels I received, friends, all I can do is to say thank you all and say just call around and see me, please. I am as ever,

W. T. Barber.

Winners Of Poster Contest Announced

In connection with Forest Conservation Week a poster competition was again held, open to all school pupils in the Western Provinces, with provincial prizes, and a grand prize for the best poster submitted.

This contest closed on March 1st, with a total of 816 posters submitted from the three Provinces: Alberta, 244; Manitoba, 185; Saskatchewan, 387. Returns were received from all over the West, from both City and Rural schools, with many entries coming from small forest and farm communities, and apparently nearly 15,000 students worked on the preparation of posters.

As the main objective of the contest was to interest the young people in conservation, and increase their knowledge of the importance of our forest resources, this undertaking met with considerable success. Though the number of the entries was less than in 1932, the schools represented indicated a more complete coverage of the West than was the case in the previous contest.

Each year "conservation classes" are held by Association conservation officers in hundreds of Western schools, attended annually by over 150,000 school pupils. This contest serves to increase the effectiveness of the Association's work amongst the young people. A large number of effective and interesting posters were received, and some of this material will be used in our publicity campaigns in conservation.

The Alberta entries were judged under the direction of Mr. E. S. Huetter, Director of Forestry for Alberta. In Saskatchewan, Mr. E. J. Marshall, Director of Forests for Saskatchewan, appointed a panel of judges. Manitoba posters were judged by a panel of judges with Mr. J. G. Somers, Provincial Forester of Manitoba, as Chairman. The grand prize winner was selected by the Manitoba judges.

Cars Parked Cheap In Police Garage.

VANCOUVER. — Motorists have found a cheap place to park — the police garage.

Police Chief Walter Mulligan complained too many drivers whose cars are impounded for traffic infractions are leaving them in the police garage for days.

The reason—the storage charges are only 50 cents a day.

But now things will be different. The fee will be 50 cents a day for the first three days, and then it will jump to $2 a day.

Funny and Otherwise

The reporter began to ask his questions. "What made you a multi-millionaire?" he asked.

"The terribly rich man looked pensive. 'I think you can say my wife did,' he replied at length.

"I see, her loyal help."

"No, no. I was curious to know if there was any income she couldn't live beyond."

Bidding ceased suddenly while the auctioneer examined a slip of paper that had been handed up to him. "Gentlemen," he said.

"I understand that someone among those present has lost a wallet containing $200 in banknotes. He is prepared to offer $50 for its recovery."

A Voice: "£51."

A showgirl with abundant charms shot her boy friend and then cried her way through her trial. For days the jury gazed upon her beauty, and finally announced their verdict:

"We find the defendant breathtaking, entrancing, wholesome, lovely and—oh, yes—not guilty."

"Two crows to make the tap you wrote about," said the plumber to the woman who answered the door.

"But we didn't send for you," said the woman.

"You're Mrs. Green?"

"No. Mrs. Green left two months ago — before we moved in."

The plumber turned to his boy. "Would you believe it, Bill? Fancy sending for us to do a job and then moving!"

Two waiters were standing by the table over which the tired diner had fallen asleep. "I've already wakened him twice," said the first waiter, "and now I'm going to wake him a third time."

"Why don't you have him taken out?" suggested the other.

"Not likely," replied the first waiter. "Every time I wake him up he pays his bill and tips me."

A hypochondriac told his doctor in great alarm that he had a fatal liver disease.

"Nonsense!" protested the doctor. "You wouldn't know whether you had that or not. With that disease there's no discomfort of any kind."

"My symptoms exactly."

"Insurance Manager — Great! Name your own figure and come to work Monday. I've been looking for a salesman like you for years."

Artist—I sell them.

"Not likely," replied the first waiter. "Every time I wake him up he pays his bill and tips me."

When a Mountain Smothered a Town

Fifty years ago the town of Frank, Alta., was buried under 70,000,000 tons of limestone that fell off Turtle Mountain. The slide, as it is called, shows clearly as a white slash on the mountain face. The town of Crow's Nest Pass is in the foreground—Central Press Canadian.

By C. F. STEELE (CPC Correspondent)

FRANK, Alta.—There will be a fifty-fifth anniversary, marked in the town of Frank on April 29, but there will be no joyous note. On the contrary, there will be a sombre flashback to the great Frank Slide of April 29, 1903, when much of the town booming Crow's Nest Pass town was buried to a depth of 100 feet in as many seconds.

The Frank Slide is one of the major disasters in Canadian history. The number of dead has perhaps never been positively established; there was no means of counting the toll of life. It varies from 66 to 100, perhaps more. But with the slide these hopes were grimly wiped out.

Old Turtle did shake itself loose that fateful April morning, sending death and destruction down upon the town. It struck without warning, although two years before there had been a sharp earth tremor that may have contributed to the disaster.

Just before the mountain collapsed a Canadian Pacific freight train had passed through the Frank rail yards while to the east the crack train the Spokane Flyer, was all but paralyzed. The horror of it all but paralyzed the train crew, all but brakeman Sid Choquette. He was the hero of the hour, for armed only with his lantern he groped his way over the mass of rock and through the choking dust for a full mile and flagged down the Flyer, an epic in Canadian railway annals.

As those who survived the avalanche of rock sought to help those within reach, the miners—husbands, fathers and brothers—downed their tools to come off shift. Suddenly they found their way blocked. This caused their most surprise, since for months the timbers had been occasionally broken.

"This is a cave-in," someone said. And the men accepted his word for it and came out of the mine by another exit just as dawn was breaking over the valley. Amazed and horrified, they saw their once proud little town all but buried and much of what was left a tangled mass of ruins. They looked first for their homes and their families, but to many neither were visible in that weird sea of rock and debris. Houses had been hatched before that terrible catastrophe as the speechless pit men saw.

The C.P.R. Crow's Nest line, which links Southern Alberta points with Southeast British Columbia, was destroyed, as was Frank's one industry—the coal mine. A new line has been blasted through the wall of rock and the floor of the valley has been reached with hope now of finding the remains of some of the victims.

An automobile road—No. 3 south—of the Trans-Canada highway—has been built and on April 29 when the 50th anniversary of the Frank Slide will be marked, a new viewpoint will be dedicated. The little burial plot, boding the bones of some who died that April morning as they slept, has been renovated and made pleasing to the eye. These remains were found by workmen building the new highway through the Slide. They were tenderly re-interred, a cross erected and the plot fenced.

Few vestiges of the town have yet been found in the excavated area but a level has been reached that should disclose something. There was one wild story that gained wide currency at the time of the disaster. It was that the bank at Frank had been buried with a fortune in its vaults. This is not true—the bank escaped.

The Slide is a fabulous source of rock for the C.P.R. and railroads have been moved east as far as Moose Jaw to be used for maintenance work on its roads. But there is slight evidence today that the material has been moved out, so vast is the deposit spread out in wild disorder across the valley.

And over the panorama of rock, with here and there patches of grass and a few hardy trees struggling to survive, Old Turtle still stands, its sheer-sided rising 7,000 feet from the valley. It is still considered by geologists a threat and although warnings have been issued, a few families cling to their cottages in the danger zone, refusing to move.

Cause of the Frank Slide has created no end of speculation. A geological report has this to say: "The slide was due, not to a single cause, but to a combination of causes, among which, the opening up of a large chamber in the mine, situated under the base of the mountain, may have been a contributory cause."

Do You Know That...

A Letter With Two Postmarks—
One of Last Night and the Other
Of Five Years Ago, Means
Excitement to Nancy.

— By —
Lilliance M. Mitchell

NANCY smiled at the maid. "I brought the morning mail along with your breakfast, Miss Nancy. It was a big post this morning so I divided the letters from the other mail."

Nancy sat up in bed and nodded. "Take the second class mail over to the desk, Jewel."

Even before she started to drink her coffee, Nancy saw it on the social page. "Joel Howard, remembered by post-beds here, will be at the Diamond Hotel for a few days while he attends to the estate affairs of his late wife, Eleanor. Mrs. Howard visited here before her marriage."

Nancy had read a week before of Eleanor's crash in Rio. The sultry, red-haired beauty with green eyes and copper lashes, husky voice that could sing the mildest melody in a slightly wicked fashion... it hardly seemed real to Nancy. They had been roommates at boarding school, holiday had slept in that bed that once stood in the alcove of the large room. After Eleanor's marriage to Joel, though, letters and messages between the two had tapered to an exchange of Christmas cards. The fault had not been Nancy's.

Having introduced Joel to Eleanor, Nancy felt a personal interest in the marriage. It rose above the fact that Nancy had grown up nurturing the idea that one day she and Joel would honeymoon on the yacht.

Nancy put out one aim hand to take the bedside telephone. She would phone Joel. After all, they were long-time friends. It would be no more than courtesy to express sympathy. She hesitated. Suppose Joel only answered her casually. "Oh, yes, Nancy! So glad you called, dear girl. I'll try to come around and see you. You aren't married, Nancy?"

They had grown up next door to each other. Joel could remember Joel's dislike of a rebuff. "No is a nasty word," he used to say.

Now Nancy decided not to telephone test his tones say no to her overtures of renewed... what, friendship? Nancy's cheeks flamed.

"There is one letter, Miss. Has two postmarks, Miss. One is last night at six p.m. The other, Miss, is five years ago, Miss—at six o'clock, too." Jewel's voice was thick with excitement.

Nancy drew her finger beneath the flap and saw a letter from Joel. "My darling Nancy:

"Now that you are through college, I want to ask you the question I've been trying to ask since you went to the Junior Prom with me as my girl. I can't take your no on it. So I'm asking you, if you're willing to listen to me, to say a possible yes—to telephone me and just say, 'I had your letter, Joel. Your guest Eleanor is a persistent little minx in my mind. She has none of your adorable, shyness. Redheads are seldom shy, my fraternally brothers-ay. She has already suggested marriage. It would be a sorry second best but I'm not a celibate guy, Nancy. I hope you're going to give me that telephone message—early in the morning. All my love, Joel."

Nancy's coffee was now chill. Five years old, the letter. Five years... before the marriage of Eleanor and Joel... that had been at this same time of year... with Eleanor as her house guest. Eleanor's early rise, Eleanor, the bright-eyed...

Nancy reached for the telephone. Her heart took an exultant joy in repeating his name. "Nancy speaking, I—I had your letter, Joel. It just reached me."

"Ah, Nancy," his voice answered quietly. "I found it on a table in a little leather envelope of papers belonging to Eleanor. I wondered if you had read it and given it to Eleanor."

"Oh, Joel! No. This is the first time I had it."

"Yes. I shouldn't have been so backward, Nancy. How about luncheon together at that Inn on the river road?"

"I'll be ready, Joel. At one. Sharp."

"I'm afraid you were never sharp, darling. Any more than I, eh? I'll be there at noon, if I can wait that long."

"It held good news, Miss?" Jewel was asking gaily. "I felt it in the bones of my fingers, Miss. My grandmamma was a witch, folks said. She could foretell things. I felt it in my bones, Miss, that it was good news inside. You'll be wanting me right along, Miss? I mean—uh—" her black eyes fell before Nancy's astonished ones in confusion. "Yes, ma'am. Gettin' so I can foretell like my grandmamma," she said, taking away the tray.

Predict More Tourists In Sask. This Year

REGINA—There will be more American visitors in Saskatchewan this year than ever before.

That's the prediction from the provincial tourist branch, which is handling 75 per cent. more enquiries so far this year than it did during the same period of 1952.

To date more than 3,500 letters have been received at the tourist branch from potential visitors. Up to the end of April last year, there were 2,000 letters from prospective visitors.

This follows a pattern already established in other parts of Canada. In Ottawa, the Canadian Government Travel Bureau reported recently that it was handling 55 per cent. more tourist enquiries this year than it did last year during the same period.

In the meantime, American tourist automobiles entering Saskatchewan during the first three months of this year totalled 1,222. This was an increase of 514 cars, or 72 per cent. over the same period in 1952.

The great bulk of tourist enquiries being received at the tourist branch are from persons who are interested in a Saskatchewan fishing trip. There has also been a sharp increase in the number of persons requesting information on autumn hunting in this province.

It's "Eggs Away" For Soaring Goose

NANAIMO, B.C.—R. S. Lough knows what it's like to be bombed by a northbound goose. And he's thankful the bomb was a dud.

A hard-boiled mother goose, winging desperately to roost, laid an egg from 800 feet into Lough's garden—but it didn't even break.

It will continue through July or perhaps later, as happened last year when on Aug. 9 a pack of 20 tardy night hawks, including one 1,500 feet long, appeared belatedly in the main shipping lane to the St. Lawrence river.

The weeks immediately ahead, however, will be the most strenuous for the three coast guard cutters and two B-7's assigned to conduct a "census" of the huge chunks of ice which will slough off the great glaciers of western Greenland.

About 7,500, some measuring two miles long at the outlet and all nesting nine-tenths of their jagged bulk out of sight under the waves, will start their leisurely journeys.

Some will get caught in ice floes and tricky currents and hang around for years. They are the "ice barriers" which are so big that the navy and air forces are investigating their possibilities as floating Arctic landing strips.

Each year an average of 427 sail through into the shipping lanes, and gradually melt away in the confusion of the Labrador and Gulf stream currents. An iceberg as far south as Bermuda is a great rarity.

The patrol, a co-operative effort of 14 nations, is a rare example of the carrying out of sober resolutions made in the wake of a great disaster to prevent its repetition. Not a

Coast Guard's Iceberg 'Ghost Patrol' Recalls Tragic Sinking of Titanic

The sinking of the Titanic as depicted by the eminent British artist Charles Dean, R.A.

By FRANKLIN JOHNSON (CBC Correspondent)

WASHINGTON—Did you ever see a ghost floating? The U.S. coast guard will watch literally thousands of them during the next three months as they patrol the Labrador current for icebergs ready to ships in the North Atlantic, including the great liners jammed with visitors to the British coronation.

As anyone who recalls the date of the dreadful Titanic disaster—April 14, 1912, when 1,731 persons, including many of the world's leading citizens, perished after the liner was punctured by a huge undersea rapier of ice, the annual "iceberg season" is at hand.

It will continue through July or perhaps later, as happened last year when on Aug. 9 a pack of 20 tardy night hawks, including one 1,500 feet long, appeared belatedly in the main shipping lane to the St. Lawrence river.

single major ship has been sunk by an iceberg since the loss of the Titanic on its gala maiden voyage.

Few events have shocked the world more profoundly. Those too young to remember the Titanic might compare it with the current sequel of the U.S. fleet, the liner United States, and what if it had sunk with terrible loss of life on its first crossing to Europe?

To top it off, the Titanic had been billed as "unsinkable" because of its vaulted watertight compartments. No shipper today would be so vainglorious, however, as to underestimate the power of a huge iceberg to send any man-made craft to the bottom.

There is not a single instance on record when a ship ever was able to take in tow an iceberg or to alter its movement in the slightest degree. Even shelling and bombing only make dents. The only defence is to spot them and keep constant tabs on them, warning all shipping in their silent ghostly paths.

The coast guard, which since the United States, England, and France took the lead in setting up the patrol, has done the job for which the others help to pay, maintains a fleet where a plot board, like those familiar to civilian air raid spotters, is maintained showing every iceberg and its drift and every ship and its course.

If the population of icebergs and "ice barriers"—these last are smaller chunks which split off with a characteristic "growl"—grows dense, all shipping late in April will be routed 150 miles south of the classic great circle route between the New and Old Worlds.

Known as "Emergency Track B," it was invoked last year and in 1951. Nightmare of the iceberg patrol is the fog off the Grand Banks of Newfoundland, which often bars visual spotting, and the big chunks with such low crowns that they are almost swash and consequently elude radar detectors.

How many Canadians keep warm with oil?

More than 4 millions. Oil is used in the furnaces or heaters of more than a million Canadian homes—better than one in four.

Oil plays a large and growing part in our everyday living. How many of these questions about it can you answer?

How does Canada rank among the nations in known oil reserves—

1st? 17th? 21st?

How many barrels of oil (35 gallons to a barrel) do you think Canadians use in a year—

1 million? 165 millions? 300 millions?

When the Leduc field was discovered, the wholesale price of gasoline at Edmonton was the highest of any major Canadian city. Today it is—even higher? lower? about the same?

Energy produced at Niagara Falls each day is equal to that in 9,000 barrels of crude oil. Prairie oil fields now produce energy equal to how many "Niagara's"—

2? 10? 100?

Taxes take a big part of a company's income. How would you say Imperial's 1952 tax bill compared with its dividends? Was it—greater? less? about the same?

Far down the list a few years ago, Canada now ranks eighth. Except for a group of Middle East countries—Iran, Iraq, Kuwait and Saudi Arabia—only the U.S., Venezuela and Russia have larger reserves.

Last year 165 million barrels—about one gallon for every man, woman and child, Canada uses twice as much oil as she did six years ago. Edmonton's wholesale gasoline price is now the lowest in Canada, 10% below the average for other leading cities. The new discoveries mean price savings of millions of dollars each year to the people of Alberta.

The energy of the oil produced in the western oil fields each day is about 18 times that generated at Niagara.

Taxes were $55 millions, about 2 1/2 times dividends to shareholders. For each dollar of income, Imperial paid 10¢ in taxes and 4¢ in dividends. Tax figures do not include gasoline sales tax paid at the pump.

AVOID USING ANGRY WORDS WHEN SPEAKING ON TELEPHONE

(Edmonton Journal)

By Angelo Patri

The telephone is one of the great gifts from science. It wipes out distance and cheats Time itself. It brings the voice of a distant friend into the room with us; it brings the doctor on wings in emergency; it aids us in so many ways in the round of daily living.

It can also, if we insist upon using it unwisely, be a source of trouble. There are times when it should be left in its cradle to give us time to cool off a bit lest we say the wrong thing and make an enemy where we should have a friend.

The school child comes home one day with traces of tears and excitement. What's wrong? "Teacher made me stay in. She always blames me. Miki kicked me under the desk and she didn't see him. She never sees him, always me. So I sit him back and she saw me and she gave me a failure and kept me in, in the mean old thing. I hate her."

Keep away from the telephone. Wait and see. I have seen a teacher and parent ready to eat each other over such a situation, while the two boys were playing together happily, going home after school with arms about each other. Children have their spats; that is all they are if allowed to pass like the clouds of summer. If they are aggravated by hot words to the teacher or the other set of parents, they become family feuds, to the detriment of all concerned.

No hot words should ever go over the telephone. People are likely to say things then that they would not think of saying when face to face with the other person, things they would be ashamed to say. Words over the telephone are carried by the tone of the voice. Anger is the ugliest emotion a human being can entertain. Who wants to shine in his ugliest?

One should be more than careful about telephoning to a school. Only in the greatest emergency should it be done. School is a busy place. The care of other peoples children is a heavy responsibility. For instance, it is unwise to telephone to the school asking to have a child

TEACHER SHORTAGE OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

By D. M. Sullivan

A generation ago, 80% of the teachers were single women, but in Alberta today only 36% of the teachers are single women. This is so remarkable a shift of emphasis that it constitutes almost a miracle. Does it mean that women are leaving the profession? No. On the contrary it is fashionable today for the glamorous school teacher — and what school teacher nowadays is not glamorous — to enter matrimony while remaining in the teaching profession. In at least one large Canadian city the school board has an arrangement whereby married women may be granted extended maternity leave on request. It is reported that their pupils hail their return with delight and rush to show them the progress that has been made in school in the interval.

Statistics recently released from Ottawa indicate that there will be a sharp increase in the school population all over Canada in the next ten years, particularly in the western provinces, Alberta, Manitoba and British Columbia. Thousands of new rooms will have to be built, and thousands of additional teachers will be required to staff them. Have you visited one of these new schools lately? If so you will agree that nowadays the most attractive building in town is likely to be the school. It is bright, well ventilated, beautiful as well as practical in its architecture, and adapted not only as a seat of learning but in many communities as a centre for cultural and social purposes for the citizenry. No wonder the children like to go to school and no wonder that they weep tears of frustration when they have to stay at home! No wonder the ratepayers practically always pass the vote to build the new schools.

A national emergency in education is almost upon us. A restless horde of children will soon be descending in a mass invasion upon our schools, and woe to that community which cannot supply the accommodation and staff the school with an adequate supply of teachers. The only untapped source of teacher supply is the reserve of married women who already have teaching certificates and a background of experience in the classroom. Already married women are being induced in large numbers to re-enter the teaching profession. Married women are fond of children; many of them have children of their own, and know more about children and what is good for them than any other section of the community can possibly know. In the schools of the immediate future it is fully expected that one out of every two new teachers employed will be married women. Married women are the logical source of supply for the augmented school enrolments now imminent.

There are at present 7,000 teachers actively engaged in Alberta classrooms. Statistics indicate that by 1966 Alberta will be using 12,000 teachers.

sent home. No responsible teacher will send a child out of school on a telephoned request, unless it is definitely urgent.

The telephone is a blessing and it should be used with that thought behind every message that goes over its wires.

SPRING CLEANING HINTS

Floors: Cleaning your floors and floor coverings does not mean drastic, back-breaking work. Indeed, finishes may suffer more from determined scrubbing with harsh soaps than from ordinary wear. Use mild soaps or synthetic detergents, and several good washings a year.

Furniture: To remove a general film of dirt, adhering to wooden furniture wash with a damp cloth wrung from warm water containing a detergent. Wash only small areas at a time and use a lint-free cloth. Rinse immediately with a cloth wrung in clear water. Dry with a soft lintless cloth, and after the entire surface is completely dried, apply a good furniture wax or polish. Buff. Never use a combination of wax and oil since oil softens wax. This causes the surface to become smeary and sticky.

Walls: On painted walls and woodwork use a neutral soap, a synthetic detergent, a commercial cleaner or this liquid cleaner (1 1/2 oz. of trisodium phosphate dissolved in 2 gallons of water). If it is necessary to remove stubborn spots by scouring, avoid coarse scouring powders since they will roughen the surface and cause the walls to soil faster and be harder to clean. Use finely powdered whiting which is available from hardware stores.

Children's wax crayon marks, as well as grease spots, can be removed from wallpaper with a mixture of cornstarch and carbon tetrachloride or some other cleaning fluid that removes grease. First remove as much of the crayon, as possible by scraping carefully with the blunt edge of a knife. Apply the paste, over the spot, working away from the spot and tapering the edges. When the paste is dry brush it off; repeat if necessary.

Windows: Sparkling windows are good indication of a sparkling house. As when washing the walls, the primary need for washing windows is a sturdy step-ladder for safety. Brush away any loose dirt before washing. Never clean windows in strong sunlight, since they will streak before you are able to polish them.

A cleaner may be water or a solution of 1/4 cup household ammonia to 1 gallon water, or a commercial glass-cleaning preparation. Never use soap, but a small amount of synthetic detergent may be used for very greasy windows.

To clean shades of washable linen or plastic, take down and unroll on flat surface. Whisk a thick suds of detergent and water. Apply with quick gentle strokes; rinse with cloth wrung in clear water, never allowing the shade to get wet. Rubbing shade away from length until completely dry. Non-washable shades may be cleaned with wallpaper cleaner. Use art gum to remove stubborn stains.

Venetian blinds should be wiped with a damp cloth wrung from a solution of a mild detergent. Never soak them in a bathtub. Coat with a thin film of wax.

Fixtures: The porcelain enamel surfaces in the kitchen bathroom need to be washed regularly with fresh suds water. Never use harsh abrasives, because they scratch the surfaces and form crevices for grease and soil.

The best protection for metal, wooden and enamel surfaces is a thin coating of wax; one of the newest products on the market is a creamy wax cleaner especially made for such use.

Bring your medicine cabinet up to date by discarding old medical supplies.

A successful and rewarding spring cleaning to you all!

BARLEY SEEDING RESULTS

Of our grain crops, barley is the most sensitive to depth of seeding. This statement is born out by an experiment conducted in Manitoba. In the experiment all other conditions being equal, barley seeded at one inch depth yielded 46.7 bushels per acre, that of 2 inch depth yielded 43.9 bushels, and at 3 inch depth yielded 36.1 bushels per acre. Although seed should be placed down to moisture, this should be done at shallowest depth possible. Barley is increasing in popularity as it has a few worthwhile advantages. In general it is earlier than our other grain crops, thus you can delay seeding and effect weed control, particularly for purposes of oats. It is a good yielder and in this respect in pounds per acre it generally out yields other crops. It's a versatile crop, that is, it is useful as feed and makes a good case crop.

DON'T OVERGRAZE PASTURE

Overgrazed pastures are a liability of the farmer. Under such conditions weeds generally take over and result in that the production of grass is greatly reduced which in turn effects the gains or milk production in your herd. If you are troubled with overgrazing, then first reduce the number of animals if your number is definitely too high. This will allow the remainder of the herd to make better gains and result in a healthier and stronger herd. Secondly, you could try to divide your pasture in two or more parts and rotate your herd from one pasture to the other allowing sufficient time in between. Thirdly, sow fall rye or oats in June to provide pasture in late summer and fourthly consider seeding a portion of your cultivated land to permanent grass and legume mixture to provide ample pasture in the future.

There is a saying, "Winter your herd on Good Pasture in the Summer." This merits consideration.

KIND OF POTATOES FOR SEED

Use healthy good-sized tubers. Small potatoes may be satisfactory if the smallness is due to the climatic conditions or late planting. However, if potatoes are small due to diseases, which is quite possible, do not use them. Diseased tubers propagate more disease and contaminate soil. If you are suspicious of bacterial ring rot or other diseases, buy certified or registered seed. In respect to varieties, there are several varieties of these. The following are satisfactory for this district.

Early Varieties: Carter's Early Favorite, Warba.

Midseason: only one, namely Irish Cobbler.

Late: Nektad Gem, a very popular variety.

SOIL CONSERVATION

What is it? This reminds us of a story of a newly appointed Agricultural representative who interviewed a farmer who had considerable drifting and some water erosion occurring on his farm. The Agricultural representative used his skill, tact and knowledge to persuade the farmer to change his methods of farming so that he would control erosion on his farm. After spending considerable time and realizing that all his efforts were in vain, the Agricultural representative asked the farmer concerned why he refused to take his advice. The farmer replied: "Young fellow, I have worn out two farms already and I'm on my third one now and I don't need any of your scientific advice on soil conservation!"

PRESS STATEMENT FOR AGRICULTURAL SURVEY JUNE 1953

The annual June survey of farms is about to start. Forms have been, or will be, mailed to reach each farmer about the first of June and all farmers are urged to complete and return these forms without delay. The questionnaires come through the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in co-operation with the Provincial Departments of Agriculture and provide one of the basic methods of obtaining data on year-to-year changes in livestock and crop production by provinces and for Canada as a whole.

Figures on individual reports are kept confidential. When grouped with others they provide the statisticians with data for making the estimates and developing the national statistics so important to farmers and their organizations, to businesses and services that deal with farmers, to governmental administrative and grading services and to all of us as consumers of agricultural products.

All farmers, therefore, are asked to co-operate in making this survey as complete and accurate as possible. It is in the farmers' interest to assist in providing these assessments on Canadian production for national and international use.

Viking Items

A new modern movie theatre is on the building program for Viking this year. It will be located on lots between Dr. Caldwell's office and the Farmer's Meat Market on the east side of Main Street. Plans call for a fifty foot frontage, an auditorium 40x80 ft. with a seating capacity of 400. The construction will be of cement blocks, with an ultra modern front and all modern conveniences for patrons. Provisions will be made for a wide screen and three dimension pictures, with new projection equipment and a first class run of pictures and showing every night of the week except Sundays.

This undertaking to give Viking and district the best in movie entertainment and accommodation is being made by Mr. H. W. K. Hilliker who has had seven years' experience in managing the movie division of the Board of Trade. His connection with movie distributors and companies is an asset and assurance that augurs well for our growing community and the success of the venture.

The building is expected to be completed this year. In the meantime the present movie programs will continue as usual.

EDMONTON REPORT

By Donald F. Smith

EDMONTON — Try and recall when the work of the home and school associations first came to your attention. Possibly it was five or six years ago. Most probably it was not 22 years ago.

Yet, the Alberta Federation of Home and School Associations Incorporated held its 22nd annual convention here last week with more than 300 delegates attending from all over the province.

Seeking information behind the scenes at the convention we found that membership in local associations has more than doubled in the past four years. There were 10,000 members in 1949. Today, association officials claim 23,000 members in 420 locals, more than 75 percent of them in the province's towns and villages.

Phenomenal growth of the associations in the past few years was attributed to the increasing work of the federation's extension branch, responsible for holding conferences throughout the province during the year and helping to organize new locals.

Said Mrs. Clare Boalch, Calgary, retiring president: "There has been more growth recently in the rural areas than in the cities. Most of the organizations are located in towns and villages, but the consolidated school districts are bringing memberships from farm families, too."

For the beginnings of these associations we must go back to the middle of the 19th century in England, where the writings of Charles Dickens about school conditions resulted in the formation of mother's unions.

Coming down to 1914, we find the first Mother's Club in Alberta formed by a Calgary teacher, Miss Willetts. The first president was Mrs. A. M. Curtis, now honorary life president of the provincial federation.

Growth of other clubs was slow and it was not until 15 years later that the provincial federation was organized with the late Dr. G. W. Kerby as president. Two years earlier the Canadian Federation of Home and School and Parent-Teacher Associations was formed as well as an international organization. Along about 1948 the Alberta federation was incorporated.

With its vast membership behind it, the federation and the local associations speak with authority on school and community matters. That its value has been recognized is shown by its two-man representation on the provincial education department's general curriculum committee. Officials of the department were in constant attendance at the convention, listening to the resolutions and offering suggestions when called upon.

Hon. A. O. Aalborg, minister of education, in a printed message to the meeting commended the federation for "bringing about better understanding and harmony among parents, teachers and school boards." He called upon the locals to urge on additional high school graduates in their district to take teacher training this year in an effort to fill the teacher shortage.

In following the federation creed of belief in the promotion of the welfare of the child in the home, school and community; the first-hand knowledge of school conditions and the provision of good teachers and school equipment the locals have turned their resources in many directions.

Reports of the rural locals show that with funds raised by teas, whist drives, movie films, cooking sales, dances and numerous other activities, they have purchased considerable athletic and educational equipment and provided scholarships for students in their schools.

They take an interest in the health services provided for school children, school libraries, grants and text books and their opinions on these matters are heard and heeded in the province's school boards and department of education.

The increasing number of associations, Dr. W. H. Swift, deputy minister of education said, "clearly shows the power for growth inherent in the home and school movement."

Pipeline Patrol

To ensure that Alberta's 1,100 miles of gas transmission pipelines operate at peak efficiency, your gas company employs a crew of linemen, as they are known in the industry. Their job: to patrol the line on foot, following a carefully designed schedule. A linewalker averages 12 miles a day, using snowshoes or skis in winter. He never hurries, and examines closely all above ground portions of the pipeline system. Where the line crosses a river, he looks for changes in the river-bed and erosion of the banks. Leaks in underground pipeline are rare, but should they happen, the highly trained inspector detects them from such clues as discolored vegetation or swarms of flies.

If the linewalker spots trouble it gets immediate attention. Your gas company's "pipeline patrol" is backed by a network of radio transmission stations, with emergency crews at strategic locations. In the past ten years the cost of maintaining, equipping and expanding this vast pipeline maintenance service has risen steadily (yet your gas bill is the same today as in 1939). Natural gas is truly your biggest household bargain!

New Wheat Seed For Fall Distribution

OTTAWA. — The agriculture department may have about 100,000 bushels of new wheat variety — developed to resist Race 15-B rust—ready for distribution as seed next fall.

Dr. C. H. Goulden, head of the department's cereals division, said in an interview that the new variety, developed after years of combined scientific effort, will come up for licensing this summer.

The department itself decides which varieties will be licensed for distribution, and it appeared likely, said Dr. Goulden, that the new variety will be approved in time for fall distribution.

"The seed likely will be handed out on a first-come, first-served basis," he said, but he didn't know whether there will be sufficient to meet all requests.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner announced development of the seed recently. He told the Commons the department has about 6,000 bushels of the new variety which is being sown this year on federally-controlled land, including the Bow river irrigation project in Alberta.

"It is not licensed yet because we have not completely proven the baking value of it, although we think it has a baking value which is just about as good as any other wheat," Mr. Gardiner said.

But because of the great threat of Race 15-B rust, which spread to Canada from the United States, the department was going ahead with planting to have a "considerable amount of the seed" for distribution at the end of the season.

Race 15-B is one of about 100 different types of rust, said Dr. Goulden, amplifying Mr. Gardiner's remarks. It was spread from the U.S. by airborne spores and hit Canada's high-priced durum wheat. The fungus germinates on the stem, evaporates the plant's water and withers the stalk.

The U.S. has lost millions of dollars of grain through this rust and Canadian scientists decided as far back as 1938 to use all means to prevent that from happening in Canada. Most of the damage so far has been in Manitoba.

A group of scientists in the department's Winnipeg laboratories found a wheat variety resistant to this rust and crossed it with high-quality wheat.

Batches of the new variety wheat were sent to California for year-round planting and quick reproduction. From the California plantings the department now has about 6,000 bushels of the wheat for sowing on Canada's Prairies. About 6,000 acres are being sown this spring.

Dr. Goulden said that while the baking value of the new variety has not yet been established, tests will continue and he is confident the variety will pass the baking tests satisfactorily.

The new wheat still has no name. It goes under the label of "C75-189". It will get a name, said Dr. Goulden, when the licence is granted.

Ex-Gg Laying Hen Becoming Rooster

WARSAW, N.Y. — Reuben Pfeiffer says one of his hens is turning into a rooster. "Look at that thing," he told a reporter recently. "Last year it was a mother and now it's busting around just like any young rooster."

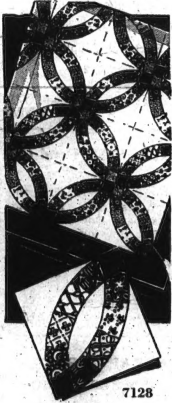

Pfeiffer said the first thing he got was when the Rhode Island Red last year suddenly started laying soft-shelled eggs that gradually became smaller. Then they stopped.

"Now it has grown a rooster's comb and tries to crow."

"It's not much of a crow," Pfeiffer admitted. "But she—he is trying hard."

Funny and Otherwise

BOSS: "You say there is a man at the door wishes to see me. Does he look like a gentleman?"

Office Boy: "Well, not exactly like a gentleman, sir, just something like a yourself."

"Why don't you like Watson?"

"Well, he's the sort of fellow who, if you asked the time, would start to tell you how to make a watch."

Having walked home from the office this evening, the beautiful blonde stenographer was greeted by her mother, who said: "Christine, dear, don't you think you ought to get about 40 winks before you go out on another date this evening?"

"You underestimate me, Mother," said Christine. "I'm sure I got that many winks as I walked across the park on my way home."

Two women were among the spectators watching a sky-writing aviator doing his stuff. Said one to her friend: "I wonder whatever induced that darned fool pilot to take up sky-writing."

Before her friend could reply, a man standing behind them, who was slightly under the weather, remarked: "Frustration, lady. No doubt his wife wouldn't let him smoke in the house."

Pipe in mouth, a man was encoined in his living room, chafing when his wife piped up and said: "Will, do you realize that next Tuesday is our 25th wedding anniversary?"

"Himmmpfftttt," grunted the husband.

"I thought," said the wife, "that we ought to kill them two chickens of ours."

"Now Sarah," said the husband, "you can't blame them for what happened a quarter of a century ago."

"How sweet of you, darling, to back that horse in the 3:30 race because it had the same name as mine."

"Yes, dearest, it had the same habits, too. It got there late."

A man applied at a foundry for a job and was interviewed by the works manager.

"What have you done before?" was one of the first questions put to the applicant.

"I was a milkman," he returned.

"And what wages did you get?"

"They used to pay me $30 a week and my milk."

The manager reflected for a moment. Then: "Right-ho," he said. "You might be useful. We'll take you on at $35 a week and wean you into the bargain."

IN SASKATCHEWAN Parked Cars On Highways Must Be Marked

In accordance with the Saskatchewan Vehicles act, Public Service vehicles and commercial vehicles as well as private cars, are required by law to be marked when parked or left on the highway. Almost three per cent. of the accidents that occurred in 1951 were caused by unmarked cars and trucks parked on the highway. In some of these accidents drivers or passengers were injured. Because of revisions at the 1953 session of the provincial legislature, from now on any Public Service or commercial vehicle must carry two flares, lanterns or reflectors capable of being seen at least 500 feet away. The flares and lanterns must be capable of burning at least 12 hours on a windy night. These signals must be set out 100 feet in front of and behind, the stalled or parked vehicle. Anyone who fails to mark machinery or a vehicle left on the highway is guilty of a violation of the law.

Murder Will Out

By G. PATRICIA WARBURTON

TONIGHT Cora would be killed. Every detail was carefully planned. Now the stage was set. There would be no mistakes. Cora would pay with her life for his years of suffering.

All that Cora had, all that Cora spent was rightfully his. The unfair will his stupid stepfather had made had left him little better than a pauper. Why should Cora have such wealth? Stupid Cora who did not even know how to enjoy money, but founded a Cat and Dog Home?

Even with all her money she had not managed to get a husband. No wonder, with her coy mannerisms, her giggling voice.

He had been clever. Never once, by word or deed, had he revealed his feelings. It was always "Good morning, Cora, how are you today?" when he met her. And after church he would greet her, "A lovely day, Cora, is not you?"

Oh, he had been careful. He took her to dinner three or four times a year, and she always invited him for Christmas dinner at the big house on the hill.

No one would ever suspect him. He smiled at himself in the mirror and bowed sardonically to his image. He looked impatiently at his watch.

Another five minutes and she would be here. He glanced round the room, taking in every detail. Everything was in place, everything fine. Cora would be surprised.

The lights were dim, the radio played softly, and the large easy chair was in front of the glowing fireplace.

He felt a surge of excitement. He lit a cigarette and wished savagely that she would come.

Then he heard her heels tapping along the hall. She always persisted in wearing high heels and looked as though she was about to slip over.

The sliding ring of the bell shattered the silence, and he flung the door open.

"Why, Cora, how nice you look," he murmured.

"Do you really like it?" she simpered.

"Marvellous," he replied quickly, wondering whether she meant the monotony of her hat or the mustard-coloured coat that did not enhance her pale white complexion and faded blonde hair.

How startled she would be if told the truth, he thought. He toyed with the idea while she removed her coat and hat and fluffed her hair, talking incessantly.

She was taken aback by the appearance of the room.

"What have you done to it?" she quavered. "It looks different."

"It's a long time since you paid me a visit, so I changed everything round."

She said nothing, and still seemed puzzled.

I mustn't let her suspect anything, he thought, and turned on all the lights. "There, that's better, isn't it?"

Putting on the lights seemed to reassure her for after a few minutes she was prattling on at a great rate.

"Will you have a cocktail, Cora?"

"Well, I suppose I shouldn't, but just one. I'll pretend it's a celebration."

Many a true word spoken in jest, he thought. If you only knew it, you're the celebration, or soon will be.

The cocktail was strong and Cora seldom drank, so her face became flushed, her eyes bright, and she didn't even notice when he turned the lights and only the fire lit the room.

This was it. This was the zero hour.

He sat on the arm of her chair, close beside her.

She stiffened, but he went on talking and smoking, and gradually she relaxed.

Casually, he slipped his arm round her.

"You know, Cora, I'm very fond of you. Have been for years, and I often think of you." He put pathos into the last line, then got up quickly as though overcome with emotion.

He came back behind her chair and lightly stroked her hair.

She seemed dazed at first, then as his hand caressed her neck, her breath came quickly, and he thought of the unsplinterable ideas that must be running wild in her mind.

For just a second his hands tightened round her neck, and he thought, no, not that way.

"Poor Cora," he murmured, for she could not see the sharp, glittering blade.

He raised his hand, then brought it down quickly.

She sighed slowly, then toppled over.

He looked fascinated at the red stain on his hand, then shuddered.

He looked up apprehensively.

"All right," boomed a voice. "Time out for lunch. Everybody back on the set in an hour."

Exchange Of Farmers Again Been Approved

REGINA.—The exchange of farm workers between Ontario and Saskatchewan has again been approved by the Federal-Provincial Farm Labour Committee.

The Committee Secretary, L. J. Hutchison, Director, Farm Labour Division, Agricultural Representative Service, Regina, said the group had recommended the movement of 200 men from Saskatchewan to assist in haying and harvesting in Ontario.

After completion of that work the Committee has requested that if required up to 1,500 eastern harvesters be brought to Saskatchewan for the harvest in this province.

Mr. Hutchison stated that 1,074 Ontario workers came to Saskatchewan last year under the excursion plan and from 2,000 to 4,000 others came on their own. The Committee Secretary emphasized that the number recommended may be revised on the basis of the extent and condition of the 1953 harvest.

The Farm Labour Committee has also considered the problem of domestic help on Saskatchewan farms and has suggested that the federal labour department explore the possibility of bringing domestic immigrants from the British Isles.

A further contingent of immigrant German farm labourers is expected to arrive at the east coast soon. Those who landed at St. John on April 20 are now being directed to farms through the National Employment Service. Of these, 20 are being allocated to Saskatchewan.

Eggs Were Omen Of Things To Come

PITTSBURGH, Kan.—Several weeks ago chickens at the Howard Windsor farm, near Pittsburgh, began laying double yolk eggs. Windsor jokingly told his wife, who was expecting, that it might be an omen.

April 1, a cow on the couple's farm gave birth to twin calves.

Recently Mrs. Windsor received her visit from the stork. She got twin boys.

Body Of Mammoth Discovered

EDMONTON.—A former gold miner told of finding in Alaska of a mammoth's body just as it was 50,000 years ago with flesh and hide intact.

Frank Kelly, now a gas station operator at Fort Nelson, B.C., said in an interview he was on an open-pit mining crew which uncovered the body along with those of a mammoth calf and a tiny horse in the Chitina river country near Fairbanks.

"The animal appeared just like it was in real life," said Kelly who is in Edmonton on a visit.

He brought here an 11-pound tooth from the mammoth, somewhat similar in appearance but twice the size of a present-day elephant. The tooth was nine inches long with a seven-inch grinding surface.

Winnipeg To Re-Open Schools In August

WINNIPEG.—It probably will rank as sabotage in the eyes of the school kids, but the Winnipeg School Board has decided to re-open city schools in August instead of the usual September.

The date is Aug. 31, but it's still August.

A board official explained that Aug. 31 falls on a Monday, and if schools were re-opened Sept. 1 the school year would include only 189 days—one day short of the minimum 200 days necessary to collect Provincial grants.

Australia's population was estimated at 5,538,000 at the end of 1951, an increase of 2,000,000 in 30 years.

PROUD RECORD

CALGARY.—Mrs. Helen Grassick, nurse-technician, has closed a six-year Red Cross career after taking a total of close to 70,000 blood donations. She helped to establish the Red Cross blood donor clinic here in 1947.

MUSIC AND MADNESS

Canadian troops in Korea have been getting an extra shot in the arm during the past few weeks. Comedians Johnny Wayne, left, and Frank Shuster, with singer Terry Dale, have headed an entertainment troupe providing props for servicemen's fagged-out funny-bones with music and madness. The gang that took off from Toronto recently included dancer Zena Cheever; musicians Lou Lewis, Jimmy Reynolds, Vic Centro, Ted Roderman and Harry Nicholson; announcer Herb May; CBC producer Jackie Rag; and sound engineer Don Bacon. So that listeners in Canada could hear their regular edition of the Wayne and Shuster Show on the CBC's Trans-Canada network, the group recorded shows on tape and shipped them back by air.
